GOOD POINTS OF LIBRARIES.

Annual Meeting of the Indiana Library Association.

The Indiana Library Association began its ninth annual meeting at the Statehouse yesterday afternoon. The programme began with the address of the president, Miss Helen Tracy Guild, of Bloomington. Miss Guild said that the library work in Indiana was growing and that there was an increasing demand for men and women of experience in library affairs. Following the address of the president, Miss Margaret Mann, of the library school of the University of Illinois, addressed the association on "What Can Be Done Over the Loan Desk to Help Readers in the Selection of Good Books."

At the night session Miss Eva M. Fitzgerald, of Kokomo, read an interesting paper on "The Public Library as a Social Center." Miss Fitzgerald said that the public library was the one class of people who most need the educational and moral influence of a library. She said that the library was the very class that received the least benefit from it. She said that she referred to those who worked in factories and shops. Miss Fitzgerald recommended that the hours of opening the libraries should be made to accommodate the all-day workers, and that more magazines and books of interest to the wage-earners should be found in the libraries.

Following Miss Fitzgerald's paper on "What Special Service Can the Library Render to the Factory Worker?" by Mrs. Laura E. Woodworth, of Fort Wayne, and the evening session came to a close with the paper of Miss Virginia Smith, of Lafayette, on "The Public Library in Relation to Literary Clubs." All of the papers were thoroughly discussed by the members of the association. The meeting will close to-day at noon. Papers will be read at this morning's session by Mr. B. Plaskett, of West Newton, and Mr. Robert W. Shaw, of McGregor, on "Our Travelling Libraries," by Mr. Omer S. Whitman, of Portland, on "How We Organized and Are Sustaining a Public Library," and by Miss Marilla Waite Freeman, of Michigan City, on "The Use of Pictures in Library Work."

CLASS OF TWENTY-EIGHT.

Arris Court, No. 5, Tribe of Ben-Hur, Receives New Members.

Last night Arris Court, No. 5, Tribe of Ben-Hur, initiated a class of twenty-eight at Corydon Hall, on Virginia avenue. The tribe of Ben-Hur is one of the fraternal beneficiary orders, with headquarters at Crawfordsville. It was organized in 1894 and now has nearly 40,000 members, scattered over half of the States. It has paid out $500,000 in benefits and now has a surplus fund of $250,000. Until recently its membership in this city was quite weak, but many new members have been taken in, and now Arris Court has a membership of about 150. The following are the names of the candidates initiated by Simonides Court of Crawfordsville last night: Mrs. Elizabeth Offutt and Edgar Fritz of Greensburg; Ashur Lund, Harry Mullins, Harvey Benjamen, C. M. Long, Charles Bangs, Benjamin Bannworth, Fred C. Janitz, W. B. Mullin, William L. Schock, Charles Rhodes, David Andrews, Alexander White, Charles Pugh, John O'Neill, W. J. Brenner, Claude H. Gest, Clarence Gest, Anton F. Miller, Phoebe Graham, J. S. Balston, Sampson H. Darnell, Joseph Schmidt, Claude A. Wilson and Nettie Mullins.

The Crawfordsville Court was entertained at dinner last night at English's cafe.

Going Over the Bills.

The members of the State Fee and Salary Commission have been engaged for the last two days in going over the bills to be presented to the next Legislature. They are three in number and have been drawn by Timothy E. Howard, ex-judge of the Supreme Court. The bills are drawn with reference to state fees and salaries, county fees and salaries and township fees and salaries.

HEINZE NOT ROBBED

THE MONEY WAS GIVEN TO MAX LUBER BY HIS WIFE.

Luber Gained Her Confidence While Mr. Heinze Was in South Africa.

AFRAID TO TELL HER HUSBAND

UNTIL PUBLICITY WAS GIVEN TO THE ALLEGED ROBBERY.

What the Detectives Learned About the Matter—Luber Gave Notes for the Money.

The investigation of Detectives Asch and Griffin, who were put on the case of the alleged theft of $2,000 from Gustav Heinze, 1101 Marlowe avenue, by Max Luber, who lived with the family, brought out some facts other than those printed in the Journal yesterday morning. It appears now that Mr. Heinze did not tell all he knew, and that while he no doubt considered the case one of actual robbery so far as he was concerned, there were several circumstances which might not make it such in fact.

It seems that Heinze was deceived not only by Luber, but by his wife, and the story of the duplicity is almost as interesting as the one told by Heinze to a Journal reporter. About the only fact that Heinze failed to relate was that he had discovered on Wednesday that instead of the money having been taken from the house in the manner described it was given to Luber at various times during the last three years by his wife and she held Luber's notes for the sums. The failure to relate this caused the Journal reporter to be deceived as to the actual conditions.

The detectives called upon Mrs. Heinze yesterday, and to them she told the following story in effect:

Shortly after the departure of Mr. Heinze for South Africa she became alarmed, and on account of rumors of burglars who were said to have prowled about the house thought, after consultation with her sister, that they would take a roomer. They had made the acquaintance of Luber at some social gatherings. He consented to take apartments in their home and occupied a front room. About a month before Christmas and before the return of her husband Luber showed her a letter from his people in Germany saying that money would be sent to him. He asked her to loan him $200 for the purchase of Christmas gifts and she accommodated him. There was some delay about the receipt of his money from Germany, he claimed, and he was given more money.

HUSBAND COMING HOME.

Shortly after this Mrs. Heinze received a letter from her husband saying he was coming home. He had by this time accumulated $1,400. She wished to improve the appearance of their home for his return and talked of buying some new furniture. After talking over the matter it was decided that furniture could be purchased cheaper in Chicago than here and accordingly Luber was sent to Chicago with money to make some purchases. After he had been gone a few days she received a letter from him inquiring as to how she liked the selection he had made. The furniture had not arrived and he was told of the fact in a letter. He replied that the goods had been bought and shipped, being taken to the freight depot by an expressman whom he could not locate. As the purchase amounted to a considerable sum Luber suggested it would be good policy to send more money for furniture and also for the employment of a detective to locate the expressman, who he claimed could not be found.

After Luber's return he borrowed numerous other sums of money from Mrs. Heinze referring to the money which he was to get from Germany and the receipt of which was held up by delays in the settlement of the estate. Luber at that time claimed was speculating in wheat, and supposed to have been successful in this purpose. After the return of Mr. Heinze from South Africa (he Heinze) turned over to her about $1,200 which he had left. She hundred dollars he had left on mortgage. The rest she deposited in a bank. Mr. Heinze was not advised which bank was the depository of the money, but he told her the money which had been loaned to Luber. He talked much of buying a home of their own and she urged the postponement of action in the matter, giving various reasons, but not the true one—that the money which he had loaned to Luber and which he had turned over to her was not in the bank as he supposed.

ASKED FOR NOTES.

About a year ago she asked Luber for his notes for the money he had received, and he gave her one for $600. He told her, she claimed, that he had much money in wheat, and said at one time the amount received $600,000, at which time he was offered $200,000 for settlement, but he intended to hold for a rise. He afterward gave her other notes. A few weeks ago Mr. Heinze again urged the purchase of a home for themselves, and Mrs. Heinze went to Luber and insisted upon payment. He made a promise that settlement would be made on other notes. A few weeks ago Mr. Heinze again urged the purchase of a home for themselves, and Mrs. Heinze went to Luber and insisted upon payment. Another Higgins Story.

A new story circulated about Higgins yesterday was to the effect that he attempted to secure $25 from William Williams, of the Williams Soap Company, for his assistance in getting an ordinance through the Council favorable to the soap factory. Last summer Catherine Gurt, who owns property adjoining the soap factory, brought suit against the management for damages alleged to have resulted from the factory's operation. Higgins was called upon by the Council to assist in getting the ordinance through the Council favorable to the soap factory. TALKED OF HANGING

WILLIAM MALLADY'S ACTIONS IN BECHTEL'S SALOON.

If He Was Hanged He Wanted His Friends to See That He "Died Game."

THE DETECTIVES AT WORK

EVIDENCE SECURED TENDS TO FASTEN THE CRIME ON MALLADY.

John Wilhelm, Husband of the Murdered Woman, Released—Other Developments.

The details of the murder of Mrs. Leona Wilhelm Wednesday have not yet been learned, but the evidence being adduced is bringing the commission of the crime close to Mallady and Hedges, who were yesterday morning formally charged with the murder and taken into Police Court. Mallady waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury. John Wilhelm, the husband of the murdered woman, was released, there being practically no evidence on which he could be held as one connected with her death. The cases of Hedges and Felix Robbins were continued until Thursday next. Robbins is charged with loitering.

The most important evidence found yesterday was against Mallady, and with other investigations, which could not be made last night, it is thought his movements from the time he left the Washington-street bridge in company with the woman and Hedges, with the possible exception of what actually took place on the river bank, can be traced.

Annie Cook and Kate Hefter, employed in the restaurant and saloon of Jacob Bechtel at 104 West Michigan street, are the important witnesses. Their story is that they were in the dining room shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday night when Mallady entered. His clothes, they said, were covered with mud and sand and his trousers were wet at the bottom. On the knees could be seen dark wet spots. He came in and said, "Hello, friend of mine," as he saw Bob Arnold and Bechtel. He was asked what was the trouble, and said he had fallen from a car into the river. Then he began pacing up and down the room, and to Bechtel he said that would be the last time he would enter his place. Asked for an explanation, he turned it off and said that was all right, he meant what he said. When asked if he intended to kill himself, he said he did not know what was behind him. He said to Bechtel: "I'm arrested to-night you'll bring me a piece of tobacco, won't you?" Bechtel said he would if he was sent to the workhouse. While pacing up and down the kitchen and barroom Mallady kept shoving his head back with his hand, and made references to having a rope put about his neck and being hung and other references to a scaffold.

TALKED ABOUT HANGING.

He told them he did not know what was behind the whole thing, and said when they got a rope about his neck he would be game, and then to Bechtel he said: "When they get the rope around my neck you come and see if I quiver at the knees." The women said all efforts to get any explanation as to what the references to the scaffold, hanging and arrest meant were useless. He also made frequent use of the phrase, "even if I did fall in the river," which to the women, Arnold and Bechtel, seemed very queer.

Bechtel last night corroborated the statement of the women, and said that Mallady wanted to sleep in his house, and after he had been there for two or three days he had occupied the offered Arnold, who had washed the dirt and sand or mud from his face and brushed his clothes, a silver dollar to sleep with him. Arnold said he slept with Bechtel, and Mallady increased his salary to $2 a day. Bechtel, when asked how much money Mallady had, said it was $6 or $7. Mallady, he said, stood beside the door, and he saw a silver dollar, saying: "I want paper for that." He then threw down another dollar and continued one at a time until he had $6 or $7. Bechtel had no paper money and did not make the exchange. Mallady was finally persuaded, Bechtel said, to go to the workhouse. He said he was going to urge Arnold to accompany him. Bechtel said Mallady made some reference to his father and his mother, and said he was going to be hung, and that he would be game and not like Geutig, who was hung here on Washington street.
